

Yavneh College, le nouveau collège juif de Borehamwood.

Identité et société environnante

L'école juive à travers la presse anglaise

La loi britannique implique que les écoles privées confessionnelles accueillent des élèves issus d'autres religions.

Les titres de la presse anglaise illustrent bien les difficultés auxquelles sont confrontées les écoles juives de Grande-Bretagne.

The Jewish school where half the pupils are Muslim

King David, in Birmingham, is a state primary where the children learn Hebrew, recite Jewish prayers, eat kosher food and wave Israeli flags. So how come the majority of pupils are followers of Islam? Jonathan Margolis investigates.

The Independent, 01/02/2007

Faith in numbers

The Jewish community is hotly debating how best to respond to a predicted drop in the school population.

The Guardian, 20/11/2007

Jewish school's admission policy 'is racist'

A leading Jewish school has been accused of racial discrimination after it refused to accept a girl whose mother was a convert to the religion.

Times online, 12/02/2008

Jewish school is cleared of bias

A Jewish school has been cleared of an accusation that its entry criteria racially discriminated against an 11-year-old boy it refused to admit.

BBC News, le 03/07/2008

Sources: <http://www.independent.co.uk/news/education/education-news/the-jewish-school-where-half-the-pupils-are-muslim-434481.html>
<http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/news/uk/education/article3354149.ece>
http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/uk_news/england/london/7487776.stm
<http://www.guardian.co.uk/education/2007/nov/20/schools.faithschools>